

Jeffery L. Schatzer is Professor Tuesday. As an author, he is noted for creating unique characters that inspire learning and turn reading into a fun-filled adventure. An avid student of Michigan and Midwest history, Jeffery creates historical fiction that brings the past to life through characters that are quirky and entertaining.

He has won numerous national and international awards for writing and creativity. His stories are also recognized for strong moral values and positive life lessons and themes. Jeffery and his wife Deborah live with their dog Doris in Bellaire, Michigan. Their home is nestled in the north woods and surrounded by the history of the Upper Midwest.

A complete listing of Mitten Press books is available on our web site www.mittenpress.com. Activity guides to accompany books are available there and can be downloaded free of charge.

Jacket illustration by Jeffrey Ebbeler
Jacket design by Danny Nanos

When we got to the top of the hill, we were all excited to see the teleporter again. Owen decided to keep his club as a souvenir of his trip to Copper Country. He held it in both hands as he followed the professor, Mister Adams, Rachel, and me into the teleporter cloud.

We all realized something was wrong once we landed back in the professor's office. A loud, low growling sound sent chills up and down my spine. We didn't see it at first. Finally, we saw two eyes glowing in the dark corner on the far side of the room. Slowly, steadily, a wolf edged into the light, baring its teeth. Rachel and I screamed. We grabbed Mister Adams and ran behind the professor's desk.

Owen stepped forward with his club and started swinging it back and forth. The club made whooshing sounds as it cut through the air. The wolf backed into the corner and continued its fierce growl.

"Professor, the wolf must have come through the teleporter," Owen whispered. "We've got to do something fast!"

OTHER TITLES BY THE AUTHOR:

Professor Tuesday's Awesome Adventures in History,
Book One: Chief Pontiac's War

Fires in the Wilderness: A Story of the Civilian Conservation Corps Boys

The Bump on Santa's Noggin

The Bird in Santa's Beard

www.mittenpress.com

Professor Tuesday's AWESOME ADVENTURES IN HISTORY

Professor Tuesday's AWESOME ADVENTURES IN HISTORY

Book Three:

JEFFERY L. SCHATZER

Returning safely from their adventures through time to learn about Chief Pontiac's rebellion (Book One), several members of Miss Pepper's class again need Professor Tuesday's help with their studies of Michigan history.

Owen and Rachel are in big trouble. Because of their constant bickering at school, Miss Pepper has given them an extra assignment. They must prepare a special report on the history of immigration to Michigan. Their classmate Jesse has been asked to go along to keep the two from fighting and arguing all the time.

To get help with their assignment, they decide to visit Professor Tuesday to learn about the past. While at the professor's office, they meet a peculiar new friend.

Their research doesn't always go well. Through the day, they dodge problems and overcome difficulties while learning firsthand how immigrants struggled to live and work in Michigan. Through it all, they discover that although people have many differences, we are all very much the same.

$14.95